Earth Day concert hits

By Margaret Smith

A crowd of students gathered on the South Campus quadrangle Friday to participate in Earth Day, sponsored by the Student Activities Commission, the Progressive Student Union and MASSPIRG.

The Earth Day activities began around 1:00 and lasted well into the afternoon. Bands like Hot Acoustics, Grapevine Road and Childhood played psychedelic, rhythm and blues and avant-garde music, while students sat on the grass and blankets to listen. Pamphlets were available on tables, giving information on the state's environmental problems — including trash disposal, toxic waste sites and, mainly, the issue of clean drinking water.

Neil Drobienere, the campus MASSPIRG coordinator, cited the dangers of water pollution in Massachusetts, especially in the Merrimac Valley area. Because of high levels of heavy metals and other toxins in many of the state's drinking water sources, many people and businesses purchase bottled water because it tastes better and is supposedly cleaner. Yet many brands of bottled water have failed purity tests, Drobienere explained.

Boston Harbor, which supplies water to communities as far north as Wilmington, is the most polluted harbor in the U.S. In the mid seventies, when the federal government offered to subsidize the clean-up of many state's polluted harbors, Massachusetts was one of the few which refused help. Projected costs to clean up Boston Harbor will now be up to five times more expensive than it would have been then, and needless to say, it is not high on the federal government's priorities.

Drobieenere, along with the Clearwater Action Project's Director Amy Goldsmith and others, hoped to make students more aware of these and other troublesome environmental realities in Massachusetts.

"Earth Day" is a tradition started in 1970 by college students nationwide who wanted to make an impact on the state's environmental problems. Although the Earth Day enthusiasm had died down in the early 1980's, Drobieenere says it will hopefully be revived.

MASSPIRG is a non-profit organization which deals with a broad range of social, political and environmental issues.

This band helped nature during last week's Earth Day Concert.

Student Government Chambers dedicated

By Chuck Mahaleris

Don Gagnon died on September 12, 1986, but he was remembered again Tuesday night during a reunion of family and friends for the dedication of the Student Senate Chambers in his name.

"Gagnon, 23, was the elected Vice-President of the ULowell Student Government Association and he was the President of the ULowell Sports Car Club for his second consecutive year." These were the words used nearly three years ago by Connector News Editor Erin Devlin to describe one of her closest friends. Devlin was in tears writing those words for Gagnon's obituary.

The news of his fatal accident on route 495 struck the university community a heavy blow. Former Connector Editor Pattie Cullum wrote in an editorial,

"When I got the call on Friday afternoon from a friend telling me that we had lost a part of our family, it was a total shock! My first response was why?"

But Tuesday night the friends who had gathered to bury one of their closest comrades joined together in a sombre, yet hopeful ceremony commemorating the life of Don Gagnon.

"It was a most fitting tribute to Don. I hope the future student leaders follow his example of determined and vigilant leadership," stated Carol Cahalane, the out-going SGA President.

Speakers that night included Senators Wayne DeLuca and David Whitford, former SGA President Steve Stanganelli, and members of the 1986 National Collegiate Leadership Conference Team who were very close to Don.

World citizens come to ULowell

By Tracey Driscoll

The third annual International Fair sponsored by Northeast Consortium of Colleges and Universities in Massachusetts (NECCUM) was held Friday, April 22, in Cumnock Hall. An estimated 700-750 people attended the event throughout the day.

The purpose of the event was "to emphasize the importance of global relations and understandings through celebration and interaction," according to Dr. Tara Elyssa, executive director of NECCUM. That goal was certainly achieved based on the favorable responses of both students and faculty members.

Father Tom Hennigan of NECCUM feels the amount of participation was very encouraging. "I was especially pleased with the wide diversity of races and nationalities which were represented," he said.

The focus this year was on the Caribbean/Hispanic culture, but many other nationalities were also represented including Italian, Pakistani, Irish, Ethiopian, Haitian, African, Greek, Jamaican, Lebanese, Indian, American Indian, Vietnamese, Cambodian, Islamic, Chinese, Nigerian and Cameroonian.

"Each culture has its own unique color and spirit and when all the colors combine it forms a beautiful raindeer" said Amit Kanodia, a coordinator of the event. "It makes me happy to see everyone share their culture and learn what each culture has to offer," he said.

Some highlights of the Fair were members of NECCUM faculty discussed the experiences they had while participating in an intensive 3-week Spanish language and culture institute in the Dominican Republic.

The audience had a taste of many different kinds of dance ranging from Lawrence High School's Los Trinitarios, who performed various Latin American dances, to a Greek dance group — The Sons and Daughters of Alexander the Great, to a traditional Mohawk Indian dance performed by Chief Onke Tase and Maxime Gillemantte.

Music was supplied by a live Caribbean band, Jose Liriano y su Orquesta and ULowell's own

CAMPUS SHORTS

SAT drug

A drug used to treat high blood pressure has dramatically increased Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for students who suffer from severe anxiety, a preliminary study says.

The test, however, will not help students who suffer from normal pre-test jitters, Dr. Harris Faigel, the study's author, said last week.

Faigel, who heads the Brandeis University health service, said he had given propranolol, a heart disease drug, to 25 high school students during a 2-year period. They were chosen because IQ tests and other evaluations suggested they had not done as well as they should have on the SAT.

When the students re-took the test after taking propranolol, their scores improved by a mean of 50 points on the verbal half of the test, and 70 points on the mathematics section.

Faigel reported he "was flabbergasted by the results," of the drug which apparently reduces the effect of severe anxiety on people, but stressed that the findings need to be taken with a great deal of caution, because it was only tested on 25 students suffering from high levels of anxiety.

Student spy

Verne Lyon is not surprised by the news that the FBI spied on college groups critical of the Reagan administration's Central American policy.

It's old news to Lyon, who says of the CIA, "On campus, I was their eyes and ears as far as the Vietnam protests go."

During his senior year at Iowa State University, Lyon recalls spying for the CIA on groups from the Students for a Democratic society to the Young Republicans. "Nobody suspected me (of being a CIA spy) except the FBI spook," the former CIA agent cracked during a recent interview on his nationwide tour of campuses. "After a while, we even began to alternate attending meetings, and then share our findings."

As it turns out, even the CIA no longer suspects Lyon of being a spy for the CIA. "Normally we don't confirm or deny employment, but statements by Mr. Lyon are sufficiently out of the ordinary that we want to set the record straight," said CIA spokeswoman Sharon Basso. "He was not employed in any way by the CIA."

The reason for the surveillance appears to be mood around Washington at that time that antiwar protests were not really student motivated, but instigated by foreign governments.

Racism and sexism at Gettysburg College

(CPS)-Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania may kick its fraternities and sororities off campus in May.

Gettysburg's Faculty Senate approved a motion in mid-April to ask the Board of Trustees to abolish greek houses, saying they encouraged sexism, elitism and "demeaned intellectual pursuits."

The trustees, college President Charles Glassick said, will consider the motion at their May meeting, and will give campus greeks, who make up 63 percent of the student body, a chance to plead their case.

In March, Stanford University officials gave greek organizations warnings they would have to come up with "non-discriminatory" ways of choosing members by 1989, or face being banned.

Meanwhile, members of Yale University's chapter of the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity say no one came to its April 3rd "general interest meeting" in New Haven.

An unnamed ZBT member blamed the meeting's failure on publicity about ZBT's March 3rd suspension at the University of Pennsylvania, the Yale Daily News reported.

Penn banned its ZBT chapter for violating campus rules by hiring two strippers to perform at a rush function in October, 1987.

Stephen O'Connor entertained the crowd with his Irish fiddle solo.

The food was abundant at Friday's gathering with each group featuring a variety of regional delicacies prepared by the students.

Although the International Fair was a success due to the combined efforts of many, there are a few individuals who deserve special recognition. Amit Kanodia, Dr. Bill Lindeke of the Political Science Department, and Shirley Wakefield of Field Services all devoted so much time and energy to the coordination of the International Fair and without their assistance International Day '88 might not have been possible.

Plans are already underway for next year's International Fair and all students are urged to participate. As Dr. Wayne Dudley, Director of Minority Affairs, put it, "International Day is a valuable part of university life which involves all students culturally. We give to it and take from it." □

Iran/Contragate discussion on campus

Former CIA analyst on Central America, David MacMichael, will discuss the role of the Reagan Administration and a shadow government of un-elected officials of the National Security Council and Central Intelligence Agency, and a private network of former military and intelligence officials in drug trafficking, gun running, and political assassination.

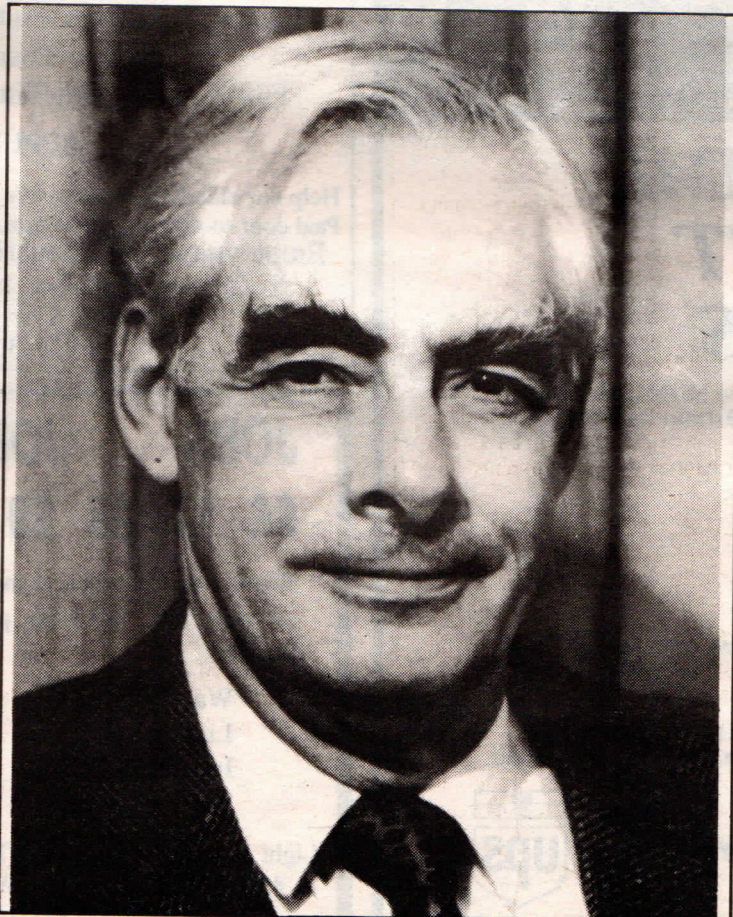

MacMichael is currently the investigations coordinator for the Christic Institute, an interfaith, non-profit, public interest law firm and policy center. The Christic institute has filed a federal civil suit against 29 members of the "shadow government" for their illegal covert activities.

In an evening presentation entitled "Iran/Contragate and the Shadow Government: A Threat to Democracy?" MacMichael will outline the charges contained in the Christic Institute's civil suit and examine how the existence of a "shadow government," threatens our constitutional democracy.

The event will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Lowell University's Weed Hall (in Lecture Hall 1) on South Campus. Admission is free. For more information call 692-8355 or 452-5000 (ext.2776).

The event is sponsored by: The University of Lowell Political Science Club, The University of Lowell Sociology Department and the Peace and Conflicts Studies Program, Fifth District Citizens Concerned About Central America, Acton Area Citizens Concerned About Central America, and the Greater Lawrence Central America Solidarity Association.

CIA analyst, David MacMichael will speak on National Security.

Clark Kent, a fairly well known journalist, covers events for the Daily Planet that range from politics, military build-ups, to the Iran-Contra Scandal. Yet even he had to start somewhere. Kent was the first to receive the Connector Pulitzer for his ground-breaking story that revealed Lowell Tech's plans to merge with Lowell State.

ULowell's Campus Police, They're Real

Peter Bernard

The boys (and girls) in blue are as real a police officer you will find anywhere. They have all the powers that are granted to a Massachusetts' police officer under chapter 90 of the Laws of the Commonwealth. These powers are from ticketing to the powers of arrest but on University property.

A few years back the Campus Police worked from a "desktop and a sole radio," said James Rowe, Chief of Campus Police. With the cooperation of the administration and trustess this department has been refitted and refurbished.

Communications Center

The Communications Center is the state of the art electronic heart of ULowell's security system. In the Ball Hall office eight closed circuit television cameras, an elaborate system of intrusion/fire alarms, a radio call box system and other components are monitored 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. There is also a paging system which can contact everyone from the plumber to members of the EMT Society and a printer which can receive the latest weather report. Soon the office will be connected to the Law Enforcement Teletype System. The LETS will allow the Campus Police receive information on vehicle registrations, stolen items, people and other items. But the main piece is the 2-way radio. As described by Rowe the radio is operating in a three ring system. The first is for police use, second - the Student Escort Service and third - the EMTs and residence hall staff.

Training

Every officer has gone through a 14 week training period (Reserve Intermittent Training) at the Northeast Regional Police Institute. The officers are trained in the law, firearms familiarization, trained as First Responders (a step below an EMT) and in other aspects of police work. This training period includes a weekly battery of oral exams, agility tests, psychological exams and physical tests. Presently all newly hired officers will go through the same basic police academy that any municipal police officer would attend. There is also six months of in service training at the University. Officers also receive specialized training in handling rape/assault cases, booking procedures and criminal investigation. All officers, including Chief Rowe, return to the Northeast Regional Police Institute for 40 hours of refresher training annually. ULowell also has two officers which have 120 hours of training in crime scene investigation as instructed by the FBI.

Statistics

In 1984 the Campus Police received 6409 call for service. In 1985 there was a 40% increase, up to 8969 calls. With increases in 1986 and 87 there has been a total 102% increase in calls over three years. During 1987, the perpetrator was not related to the University community in 88 of 100 arrests.

The Job

The Campus Police are real police officers. If the administration and trustees deemed it necessary they would carry guns. They are here for the safety of the students and the property of the state. If something happens which you think is improper "report it" says Chief Rowe. Without your report nothing can be done to correct the problem. The department also has a complaint procedure in place if it is needed. There is also a file of commendations for their actions. These people have had specialized training and are there to help as their motto says "Dedicated to Serve Those who Quest for Knowledge".

News Tips

regarding any campus event, occurrence, or activity may be phoned in to the CONNECTOR at 453-1872 or 452-5000 X2359. Please leave a phone number where you can be reached.

Quiet day for women

Reflection on "Fire-Woman"?

Are you a "fire-woman"? The following questions might help you come closer to the fire in your life: What different forms does fire take? What are your usual (or perhaps unusual) contacts with fire? What are the properties of fire? What is it like to have too much fire? What is it like to have too little fire? How would a woman whose fire-nature is in play handle problems?

A woman in touch with her fire-nature is one with a well-developed intuition. "Fieryness" is that part of ourselves that is about our spirit-lives, about our inner sparks. All ULowell women (students, faculty, staff, friends) are invited on a retreat at which we will pay attention to and nourish this part of ourselves. Taking the Legend of St. Barbara as our starting place (from Betsy Caprio's book, The Woman Sealed in the Tower), we will explore the element of fire, the ego function of intuition, and the image of the shekinah. Ritual, reflection, faith-sharing, and drawing will be vehicles for our exploration.

Campus ministers Imogene Stulken and Pat Davison will conduct this fourth in a series of "Quiet Days of Prayer for Women" on Saturday, May 7th, in Preston Hall on the West Campus. The day will begin at 9:00 a.m. and conclude by 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be provided. To get more information, to ask about transportation and/or to make a reservation, contact either Pat (454-0151, 452-5000 x2464) or Imogene (454-0683).

Scorpions Provide Savage Amusement

By Paul Markunas

The recent release of Savage Amusement by the Scorpions marks the first new music from the German metal band in four years. Fans of the band have been waiting on the edge of their seats since the Scorpions' last studio album, Love At First Sting, filled the radio airwaves with such tunes as 'Rock You Like a Hurricane,' and 'Still Lovin' You.' Some relief came with the 1985 release of World Wide Live, a concert album featuring music from the Scorpions' last four albums. Since then, however, we have had nothing but rumors to remind us that the band was still alive! Then, along came Savage Amusement!

The album's nine songs have a sense of 'newness' about them, while still maintaining the classic sound of the earlier music. The opening cut, 'Don't Stop at the Top,' urges us to aim high in whatever we do, with lines like 'never say never to a challenge,' and 'spread your wings, you're gonna make it.' 'Rhythm of Love,' and 'Passion Rules the Game,' tell of the good points of love and lust respectively. Next, we are treated to a barrage of electronic gadgetry brought to life by guitarists Matthias Jabs and Rudolf Schenker; while they play, lead vocalist Klaus Meine sings about the woes of 'Media

Overkill.' The first side ends with 'Walking on the Edge,' it is a reminder of how easy it is to let your emotions rule your life. Meine asks 'don't you see the bridge I've built for you,' in an effort to help a friend who is 'Walking on the Edge.' The Scorpions devotion to their followers is preached in 'We Let it Rock... You Let it Roll.' Although the song is musically mediocre (save for Jabs' solo), the song carries a message which is sure to go over big in concert. 'Every Minute, Every Day,' tells of an addiction to love on the run (consequently the name of the next song), which is shattered by the stronger pull of true love. 'Love on the Run' is a rowdy, kick-ass metal tune designed to get your adrenaline pumping. It is loaded with the fast-paced drumming of Herman Rarebell (aka Herman Z. German), Francis Buchholz' bass slapping, and guitar riffs from Jabs and Schenker. The vocals are rushed, and they basically tell of the lustful desires felt by a rock star on the road. In true Scorpion tradition, the last song is a ballad. It seems that Klaus' woman has left him, so he is asking her for another chance. This is a Scorpions masterpiece! Meine's voice is superb and the band is perfect behind him. The chorus goes: 'baby our love will find a way, as long as we believe in love.' Lyrics like this, and albums like Savage Amusement help keep thousands of fans all over the world believing in the Scorpions.

YOU ARE GOING TO SLEEP ...

By Barry Holt

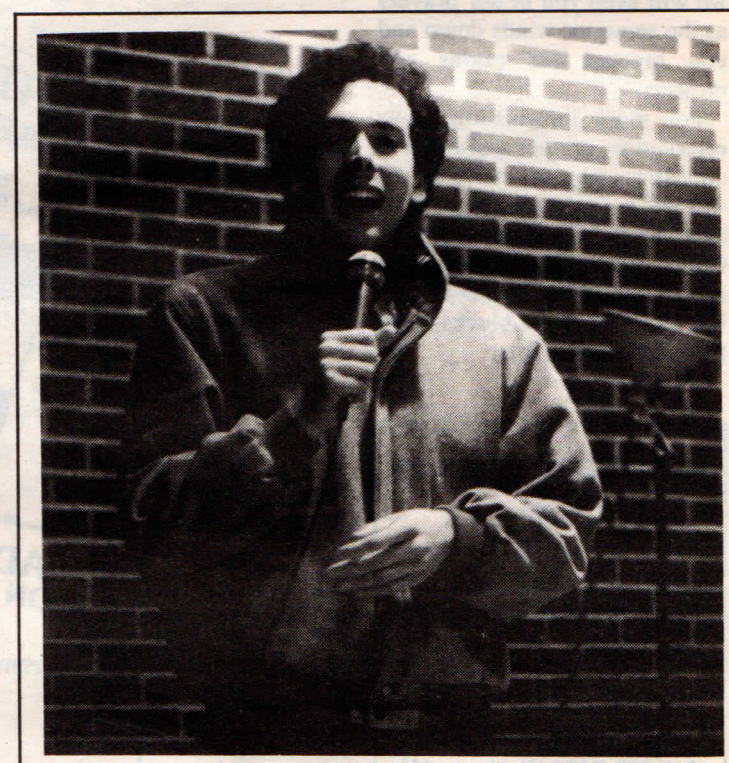

The last two times he was here body parts disappeared, Martians were sighted fish head sales were booming, and the audience was rolling on the floor. But then, that's just a normal evening when hypnotist John Sacco takes the stage, as he does tonight at 9:00 p.m. in the Rat.

This will be John's third appearance at ULowell, and once you attend (or participate?) in one

his shows you'll realize why he's invited back. For those who have never seen a show like this, come prepared to be fascinated by the power of the mind—but also come prepared to laugh for a solid hour. Because not only is John a skilled hypnotist, but having graduated from the psychology department of Boston University only two years ago he knows how to show a college audience a good time.

This will be the fourth time I have seen John perform stage hypnosis each of the previous three shows were consistently entertaining. A night with Mr. Sacco is a mixture of magic, comedy, and science that is impossible not to enjoy. Magic, because you won't believe what you're seeing; comedy, because his willing subjects trust him and so reveal their true personalities; and science, because that's what first got this interesting and personable performer interested in the mind.

During his four years at BU John studied psychology, including the medical applications of hypnosis. At John Hopkins hospital in Baltimore he has observed the use of hypnosis in place of anaesthesia, and back in Boston he has studied its uses in controlling the side effects of chemotherapy in cancer patients. His other interests in the subject have led him to the areas of habit control and sports psychology.

As a stage hypnotist ULowell is only one of the many places he has performed. In addition to area colleges, he has performed for students in many places, including Colorado, California, and, during winter break, in the Bahamas. On May 9 he will be performing for British students at the University of Bath.

So so yourself a favor tonight and definitely check out this event TONITE at 9:00 p.m. in the Rat.

Spring Cook-out

COME ONE !!! COME ALL !!! We invite you to come on Wednesday May 4th to the Catholic Center for our Annual Spring Cook-out. We will begin our festivities with a mass starting at 4:30 p.m. followed by a cook-out which should start around 5:30 p.m. The menu will be hot dogs, hamburgers, potato salad, chips, pickles, desserts and beverages.

We invite you and your friends to be our guests. This includes students, faculty, staff and administrators. If you can only make the cook-out and not the mass, or the mass and not the cook-out, we would be happy just to see you. If you can't make it we will keep you in our prayers as the semester winds down and you prepare for exams and projects.

For more information, your reservation, or your assistance in cooking, please call us at 454-0151. For those of you who have never been to the Catholic Center, we are located on the corner of the VFW Highway and Mt. Hope St., three blocks down from University Ave.

OOOZ ball takes ULowell by storm

The stage was set, the players were buzzing, the stage was set, the OOOZ Ball was awesome! Last Thursday, a curious and enthusiastic crowd gathered to witness nine teams challenge the elements to clash in the First OOOZ Ball, co-ed mud volleyball tournament.

Prior to the opening of the first round, the Lowell Fire Department opened the event by placing the finishing touches on the two courts...a thorough dousing. When it was time to climb in, Three men and a Babe versus Sex Machine started things off. Play was cautious at first, with teams developing a 'feel' for the game and its surroundings (most played barefoot). Sex Machine advanced to the second round as the mud grew deeper.

By then, the firemen had also flooded the second court where the Mud Slingers christened it with a victory over the mud loving Goon Squad (who had started the game off by dunking their biggest fan). The Hamsters' added a bit of finesse to this mud frenzy with an impressive win over a soaked Three Men and a Lady (not to be confused with Three Men and a Babe).

The Sleddogs and the Brewskis got it on in the only round robin game to see who would face Wet Paint in the final game of the first round. One play after another left bodies in the mud keeping the ball in play. Once the waves had cleared, the Brewskis had won bragging rights. The Brewskis then defeated Wet Paint for a berth in the Final Four.

The semis were both thrilling games, setting the stage for the Finals. Sex Machine and the Mud Slingers would challenge for the title of OOOZ Ball Champions and the cash prizes supplied by the R.H.A. Scores went back and forth, finally, after four game point attempts, Sex Machine edged the Mud Slingers to take it all. The mud is theirs for a year.

...The OOOZ will be back.

Staff Appreciation Day

The Office of Residence Life is sponsoring a Staff Appreciation Day for its resident staff members. On Thursday, May 5th a special dinner will be served at all the campus cafeterias in honor of all hall staffs.

Resident students are encouraged to express their appreciation for their own staff members on this day.

The appreciation day is in honor of the Resident Advisors (R.A.'s) in all the campus residence halls. During the year they have numerous assigned duties from administrative functions to community development, yet the R.A.'s do much more that is not specifically required of them.

For instance, many R.A.'s help tutor students on their floors, advise them on class selection and changes of major. They also participate in a wide range of student activities to help improve the quality of life at the University. Most importantly, R.A.'s make themselves available and knowledgeable to assist students in countless ways - everyday.

It is this unselfish dedication to serve others that the Residence Life Program wants to celebrate. Students can participate by personally thanking their R.A.'s, taking them out to lunch, sending them flowers, or any way they deem appropriate.

In addition to the special dinner, the Residence Hall Association and the local hall councils are having a barbecue for all staff at the end of the semester. There is also a semi-formal banquet and awards ceremony is planned for all R.A.'s on May 21st.

Several local businesses have donated gifts to show their appreciation for the R.A.'s at the University.

The last meeting of the Hang Gliding Club will be held on May 5th, at 7:00 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room under the North Campus Library. There will be a guest speaker, and refreshments will be served. More Information is available at Ball 111 or by writing box 116.

Challenge of a lifetime

How would you like to jump out of airplanes? Crazy? Sure, but also loads of fun. This summer I am going to Airborne School through the Army Reserve Officer's Training Corps. Three weeks of intensive physical training, high motivation, and five jumps from 1250 feet, make this training all worthwhile.

The Basic Airborne Course is at Fort Benning, Georgia. Broken into three phases of training, the Airborne soldier must complete each phase successfully before moving on. The first phase, in ground week, where you become highly proficient on and with the equipment. In the second phase, tower week, training continues from the 250 foot tower. The third week is JUMP WEEK, five qualifying jumps, one of which is a night jump. Are you Airborne material? Join Army Reserve Officer's Training Corps and find out for yourself. AIRBORNE!

The winner of the ULKarate Jellybean Contest is Dave Piscatelli. His guess of 1592 beans was three below the actual count of 1595. Thanks to all who helped with the same, and to all who made guesses. Dave spend your $125 wisely, you will never get a second chance at this.

Be a leader

The Reserve Officers Training Corps, (ROTC), has taught me not only interpersonal skills of a manager, but also the ability to handle responsibility and to make decisions.

In ROTC, I have learned personnel management at the highest degree. Responsibility, personal confidence, and the desire to achieve, are traits that are instilled in every cadet. A solid foundation of leadership skills has been solidified within me. I have acquired the ability to take on any challenge that may confront me.

After graduating from the ROTC, I will be commissioned as a United States Army Officer in the regular army, Reserve, or National Guard. I will be dedicated to any mission and ready to accept responsibility from those in command. I will also be ready to lead by example.

If you are interested in starting your career as a leader, look into Army ROTC. It could be the key factor in succeeding at a rewarding career and in a leadership position.

Dear Representative,
As one of your constituents, I would respectfully urge your support in moving House Bill 3010 speedily through the House and into the Senate. The expansion of the University of Lowell which is contained in bill 3010 is as vital to the future of our citizens as it is to our economy.

Thank you for your support.

Ho Hum, More Drug Wars

By Margaret Smith

Editor

In 1984, Nancy Reagan launched her "Stop the Madness" campaign, urging all grade school and high school students to just say no. Her heart bled for those young victims of a crime world gone wild during the seventies; if she could persuade one student out of a thousand to avoid drugs, she said, she felt she would have done her job.

It is too bad her husband, standing by her side through this crusade, didn't do his. Almost simultaneously, he cut federal funding to drug rehabilitation centers. The help promised to schools for drug awareness programs vanished after he was re-elected.

One wonders if the Reagans were talking to the right group of people to begin with. After all, a survey in 1982 reported that the use of marijuana and other drugs by people under 21 had dropped about 20 per cent. Although marijuana use is still prevalent among many high school students, alcohol-about which the Reagans have been even more silent than they have about AIDS-is even more a problem for teens and college students.

Perhaps Nancy should have been carrying her Just-Say-No's to high-rise apartments and condos in Manhattan; up until very recently, cocaine was a commodity available only to those who could afford Mercedes and Pierre Cardin ties. Let's face it; if there simply were no market in this country for drugs, no one would bother trying to sell them here.

We cannot expect junior high kids or even the police to take on the burden of combating drugs; they are not the ones who brought them here in the first place. The U.S.'s constant and often illegal interference with Central and South America has doubtless eased dealers' abilities there to make contacts and exports to Americans. The result: more drug traffic, a drop in the price of cocaine, and the greater availability to the general public. A wonderful example of trickle-down theory and supply-side economics.

So why should the drug crisis be such a shock to us? A history teacher here, a sensitive and insightful man, suggested that the material wealth now enjoyed in this country has not made us happy. We are more stressed and suicidal than ever; perhaps we have returned to the times when housewives took little amphetamine tablets to perk them up, and when cocaine, rather than caffeine, gave Coca Cola its pep as well as its name.

Or, more likely, we never left those times. Even the drug guru of the sixties, Timothy Leary, recently conceded on a talk show that drug problems have always been with us, only now the stakes are much higher than the occasional Dead Head who pops a bad tablet of LSD. His advice to everyone-kids and police and yuppies alike-to do what Nancy says. "But," he added, "don't be an impolite Republican. Say, 'No thank you.'"

Easy for you to say, Tim. In the mean time, we will continue to listen to Nancy insist that we need tougher prosecution of drug dealers-that is indisputable. And even as she speaks, her husband continues to meddle in Latin affairs, and we will continue to hate tips of the iceberg like Manuel Noriega when they come to the surface. Let's not continue to be distracted by the symptoms of the problem, but look for the cause.

Letters to the Editor:

The last few issues of The Connector have been disheartening to many readers. It all started with the "King Kong died for your sins" remark in the comics section.

Then in the issue dated April 4, an editorial entitled "Keeping the Faith" appeared where it was stated that Christianity was being mocked. Apparently, there were also many verbal complaints made to The Connector about this careless remark. In this very issue was another poor attempt at humor portaying the tragedy in a plastics engineering laboratory. This strip further emphasized the careless attitude of The Connector staff.

And then in the April 14th issue, a response to "Keeping the Faith" called "Lighten Up Rev. Brown" appeared. After reading the comics page of this issue, one wonders who should "lighten up". The entire comics page gave the impression that the readers couldn't take a joke. Readers can take jokes, when they are done in good taste. Additionally, the staff lost the artificial "protection" of the comics page when they let this carry on into the personals section. There were also two complaints about the plastics engineering mockery in this issue.

I believe I am correct in saying that the primary task of a college newspaper is to serve the students, not offend them. In light of this assumption and the fact that there have been so many complaints, I think it's time that The Connector staff end this childish game. Print a retraction for each of the comic strips and an apology to your readers for your indifferent, and at times sarcastic attitude toward them, and all will be forgotten.

Driver's Corner

The rain on Sunday April 24th didn't stop 17 drivers from racing in the last U.Lowell Sports Car Club's autocross of the spring season. Driving technique had to be adjusted to the wet surface in the Riverside parking lot using lower tire pressures and 'controlled' oversteer. Dan Rosato came from behind to finish first in class A, ending a successful year that he started at the back of the pack. Tom Harvanek and Lou Nocca exchanged 1st place 3 times before Tom came out on top in class B. Dan (arm out the window) Gover took his Z24 to it's limits in a surprise win over William Collyer's Mazda MX6 GT with less than a tenth of a second between the two. Videos of this autocross and others will be shown this Friday at spring carnival at the U.L.S.C.C. booth. That wrapped up the spring series of autocrosses, one of our most successful seasons ever. We hope to see all those that raced again next fall and some new faces too. In the meantime the U.L.S.C.C. will be taking trips to other autocrosses around the state this summer including those held at Otis A.F.B. along with going to the Montreal Grand Prix. This Tuesday May 3rd the club will be holding elections for club offices. For more info. on club happenings meetings are held every Tuesday at 7:30p.m. in Fox 523 or call Erik Day at 475-9175.

Jason Cakouros finished fourth in the 800m at the BC Relays on Saturday.

Track team has fair showing at BC

By Valarie Castora

The men's track team competed in their third meet of the year on Thursday, and Saturday at the BC Relays. On April 21, the two steeplechasers Declan Gilbert (9:31), and Michael Wright (9:29) added two new top ten times to the school record. Freshman Eric Desharnais set a personal record in the 5000m with a time of 15:18. Eric came from dead last after the first mile to a top ten position by the end of the race. Freshman Suraffel Assefa ran his first 5000m of the year and senior Steve Peterson competed in his first 10k of the year.

On April 23, junior Bill Campbell had his best showing of the year in the 200m dash with a time of 22.8 and a fifth place finish. Senior Jason Cakouros, coming from the back of the pack, finished fourth and also had his best time of the year in the 800m with a time of 1:55.9. Other competitors included Freshman Bill Bradbury in the 110m high hurdles; he and Tim Gunn also competed in the 400m intermediate hurdles. Senior John Choate ran 50.9 in the 400m; freshman Terence White ran the 1500m. Out injured included Gus Silva, and Joe Palano.

On Thursday, April 28, Brian Moody and Mike Wright will be heading for the Penn Relays to compete in the 10000m. The remaining Chiefs will be at Brown for a substitute meet on Sunday, May 1.

NECKC Invitational

By Wendy Johnson

On Saturday, April 16, the ULowell Karate Club sent eight teams to Tufts University to compete against Tufts, MIT, Fitchburg State, Bridgewater State, Boston College, Boston University, and UMass Amherst in the NECKC Invitational Tournament.

ULowell sent in five men's novice teams. Lowell's B team consisting of Jim Wilkins, Dave Swallow, and Brendan Cahill; and the D team consisting of Steve Stone, Kevin Parker, and Edwin Yeung advanced three rounds to the finals. The final match was a fight between ULowell B and D. The score was tied with one loss, one win, and one draw per team. Lowell B took first place with 6 points and Lowell D took second place with 5 points.

The Women's Kumite team fought two rounds. Jennifer Benoit, Wendy Johnson, and Maureen O'Connell fought Fitchburg's team for third place. With one win, one loss, and one draw, the score was tied. The judges use the number of points scored by each team to determine the winner. In this case, the points were even, which meant a fight off. Lowell won the match 3 to 1. Overall, Lowell won first and second place in the men's novice kumite and third place in the women's kumite.

On Wednesday, April 20, the Club had its promotions. Master Sensei Kazumi Tabata conducted the promotions while 19 students performed basic moves of skill and technique such as punches, blocks, kicks, and flying techniques. After the basics were performed, the students had to perform their respective katas: a series of moves against many imaginary opponents.

Finally, students had to show control in offensive and defensive sparring while one advanced student had to fight two on one. The following students were promoted to yellow: Jennifer Benoit, Chris Atwood, Chris Lizotte, Steve Stone, Alan Potvin, Scott Vachon, Al Contarino, Greg Vermette, Vincent Messina, Greg Sauter, and Bill Holden. Promoted to yellow with an orange stripe included Mike O'Connell, Kevin Parker, and David Lam. Maureen O'Connell, Wendy Johnson, and Brendan Cahill advanced to orange. Edwin Yeung was promoted to blue and Jim Wilkins to green.

ULowell baseball on a roll

By Adam Hughes

The varsity baseball team extended its' winning streak last weekend, sweeping double headers against New Hampshire College and Bridgeport. This gave Coach Stone's team four important conference victories.

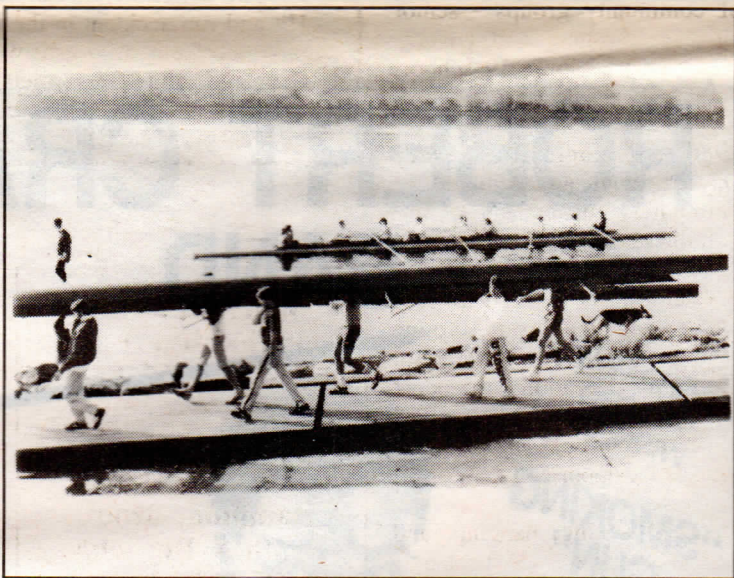

On Saturday, The Chiefs played host to NHC. The first game started off slow, but in the fourth inning, the Chiefs scored seven runs sparked by a two-run homer from Matt Almeida. This put the Chiefs up 8-2 and they never looked back, winning the game 17-4.

Kevin Shea, the winning pitcher is now 3-0 on the season. Joe Luis had 4 RBI's followed by Chris Riley with 3. Neal Larsson hit his fourth homer of the season. The second game was a blow-out as well, with Scott Johnson throwing a 9-0, two-hit shutout. Three Chiefs hit homeruns: John Spencer, Andy Livezey, and Chris Powers.

On Sunday, the team travelled to Connecticut for another double-header against Bridgeport. The results were similar to Saturday's, with the Chiefs posting back to back blowouts, 14-4 and 16-4.

In the first game, Brett Lenner-ton got the win, pitching relief for Joe Murray. Chris Riley, Scott Johnson, and Dan Barros each had homeruns. In the second game, Bob Angelico (2-0) had the save. John Spencer hit his 11th homer of the season, and Neal Larsson set a new school record for RBI's (99). The Chiefs now stand at 21-7, overall, and 7-1 in the NECC. The next game is today versus Northeastern at 3:30.

ULowell Crew prepares to dog it out

By Mary E. Cullen

The University of Lowell Crew Team hosted Marist College this past weekend at the Bellegarde Boathouse on Pawtucket Blvd. The early morning sun succumbed to clouds as the Marist crew scratched the first race. The women's novice four swept by the cheering crowds to capture the first Lowell victory of the day with a time of 9:08. Then the men's novice eight launched a battling effort against the Marist crew and emerged winners setting a staggering pace for their fellow oarmates.

Despite heavy defeats the ULowellcrew managed to hold on to their positive attitudes. The men's lightweight crew gave an outstanding performance as they battled two Marist crews neck and neck down the 2000m course, only to finish .07 seconds behind Marist.

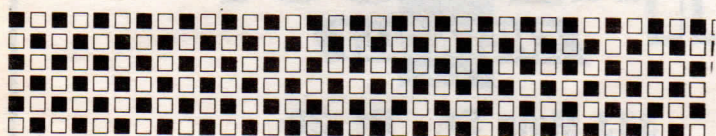

Another near victory came during the women's varsity four race where the ULowell crew made up a half a boat of open water to finish just two seats behind the Marist boat. The second ULowellboat finished respectably with a time of 8:41 with the last minute replacement of Renee Garneau. Coach Jim Polcari is readying his crews to dog it out in the nationals. 'It's a dog fight,' says Polcari, 'and the winners are the toughest.'

Though the majority of races were won by Marist the varsity men have maintained their 5-1 winning streak. 'They take no prisoners,'spouted a defeated Marist rower after the grueling race.

The over cast skies and chilling winds blew as the men's novice B boat traversed the Mer-rimack, paced by the virgin stroke Doug Murphy. 'It was a tough race, but we wanted it and we finished,' gritted Murphy who managed to keep the stroke despite a defaulted slide. Perseverance and stamina are the ingredients for success in any sport, but a will to forge into the face of insurmountable obstacles is the pervading spirit of these rowers.

On Saturday ULowell hosts many of their top competitors for their last home race of the season. Wane off.

School Volunteers

School Volunteers for Lowell (SVL) provides a vital link between the public school system and the greater Lowell community. Beginning its fourth year in service to the public, the SVL program continues to demonstrate its effectiveness in strengthening student academic achievement by involving broad spectrum of Lowell's population - parents, senior citizens, university and high school students, and other community members - in the education of students in classrooms all over the city.

Goals: SVL has five goals:

1. Increase the involvement of the community in Lowell public schools;
2. Recruit, train and replace volunteers in schools for specific priority areas of the curriculum;
3. Demonstrate benefits to students in these priority areas;
4. Meet the needs of both participating school personnel and volunteers; and
5. Expand the number of participating schools annually in response to principal and teacher requests.

In 1986-87, SVL brought 261 volunteers into the Lowell Public Schools. 153 volunteers were recruited, trained and placed in Lowell classrooms, committing themselves to serve two hours, twice per week. Of the 153 volunteers, 75 were ULowell students, 42 were parents with children in public schools, 15 were Lowell High School Students, and the remaining 21 were members of a broad range of community groups - senior citizens, business and government organizations. 19 schools requested and received volunteer replacements. On November 13, 1986, "Community Reader Day" brought an additional 72 community business, civic, and cultural leaders to enter Lowell's 160 Kindergarten, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd grade classrooms to read along and encourage young readers. Another SVL program, the 1987 celebration of Student Art, gave young artists from 22 public and two parochial Lowell schools the opportunity to display examples of various artistic media. Planning, hanging, and gallery sitting at the Art celebration involved 36 volunteers. An estimated 3500 spectators, ranging from parents, teachers, students and community art lovers visited this two week long event at Lowell's Pollard Memorial Library.

School Volunteers for Lowell is a coordinated volunteer program that was initiated in the Fall of 1984 in response of a Lowell Model for Educational Excellence recommendation to increase community participation in Lowell Public Schools. A joint project of the Lowell Public Schools and ULowell's College of Education's Center for Field Services and Studies, SVL has been supported primarily by grants from the Theodore Edson Parker Foundation, the University of Lowell, School/College Collaborative grants from the Massachusetts Board of Regents, and Lowell-area businesses.

Need a major? Try American studies

The program's focus, as its name suggests, is the study of the development of American society and its culture. Students are encouraged to select—along with American studies courses—two disciplines of their choosing from which to view the American way. The major enables students to develop tools with which to deal with people, institutions, traditions, and new ideas. Students in American studies believe that a interdisciplinary approach is necessary for understanding the relationship between, let us say, democracy and technology, the individual and society, tradition and change, family and work, domestic and foreign affairs, minorities and the majority.

The major is rooted in the Liberal Arts, but students are encouraged to acquire basic business and computer skills, and to undertake a field experience in a profession of one's choosing. Practical skills combined with the demands made upon students by the major to read, think, and write with a high level of excellence prepare American studies majors for the challenges of American life.

Although our American studies graduates are not as famous as Yale's Tom Wolfe or Gerry Studds, they have pursued a variety of careers with great success. Graduates who have entered business are executives, technical writers, sales managers, and product managers; others have gone into public relations, the media, film making, government service; become lawyers, ministers, teachers, college professors, and successful parents.

If you enjoy shaping your major, a challenging academic experience, and an understanding of forces shaping American values, consider American studies. See Dr. Cliff Lewis (O'Leary Library 407) for more details.

CUEING FOR RAMSES

Personals

To all Personals Page User: This is just a reminder that in order for your personal to be published, it must conform to the following specifications: 1) Typed; 2) On a 3x5 index card; 3) First and last name and box number on the back; 4) Only one personal per card; 5) Reserve the right to edit as I see fit; 6) Limit three personals per name and box number per week; 7) In the Connector office by 5:00pm the Monday before publication. The Typesetter

Fernando: Rumor has it that you still attend this fine institution. Where have you been hiding out? Certainly not on the personals page. The Typesetter

NoMIND: We have been using our hands for other things. Recently, we held our Sixth Annual Fag Bash. Recently, your "buddy" refused to disclose your whereabouts. So, we promptly used our hands to pummel him senseless. Too bad you missed out. The Hack of Devastation, Inc

Micheal— I want to thank you for that wonderful Thursday night. I'll never forget it. Love you!! Tracey

To Peppermint Patty and the Hostile Witch: I truly appreciate the help in Francis. I may be bent but I am not warped like you two. Wally the Weatherman

To the Brotherhood of SQN N-12: Live long and prosper. Let us be the Brotherhood we have always been and always will be. "P/R never dies, it lives on in the minds and hearts of all the Brothers. The Brotherhood

To the Slob on 15: I think it's time for you to take your socks off and join me on cloud nine. Wally the Weatherman LSR 1: When are you going to finish coloring the door? I hope Pete likes confetti as much as you do! We could always stage a repeat (The one who fell out of the boat) performance. Just don't let him get your socks! LSR 2 P.S. A blind man walked into a bar!!

LSR 3: I may be a slob, but at least I don't take two guys to the same ball! To bad you don't sleep under the covers anymore. I'm sure the sheets would be perfect! Most normal people use nail polish for nails and wooden spoons for cooking, but at least you're keeping in character. LSR 2 P.S. Just don't let anyone know you put orange peels in your case, they might think you're crazy

No Harm: Why don't you lighten up! Dr. Strangelove

Hampsterbrain: If only you could say aunt properly! Can you show me how to drive just like you? Please!! How about cooking pancakes or Blueberry muffins? Or maybe in your spare time you could show me how to juggle apple pies? You could always be a model (or just look like one, especially in a wig). Keep it up and you just might turn into a slob! The Phantom P.S. When are you expecting?!!

Peppermint Patty: It's more fun when it's bent! not-so-poor Alisa

A: You give me mental stability. You help me make it through the day. Thank you hun, I love you. W

WTC3: Just this much (). Ahab

Miss Colleen: I hope that at the time you are reading this personal that you're not too shattered!!! I hope you make it to the Tiffany concert. Jen

JB: You came in with one guy and ended up in another's bed, how did that happen? Get lost much in the middle of the night? Quin

Laura: Was that you hand cuffed in the back of that patty wagon. I can't believe you bit the police officer's hand. Next time we'll leave you in for two nights instead of one. And remember peddling is not the way to get money for beers!! Soem concerned friends

Mimi: ummhm. Yes. You'll be leaving now. Yes, you'll be going. We weren't expecting any visitors. I'd like you to leave please. There's the door, utilize it!!

Clarkie, The next time we go home you better not have to drink another pitcher. You know how important impressions are. Thanks for sharing your smile! Luv ya, Terri

Good morning to the Breakfast Club! Wow, an over easy egg with toast and melted butter. Some say we will be able to levitate. Tau love, Yucca

Angelina, aka Bimbo, As all of us know, you didn't strike out but instead you made it all the way to second base. haRAY. Congrats, Al

Happy Birthday Michelle from the quad

To all of you involved with 1706, remember our motto: We're young, we'll bounce back. Words to live and die by

The next time I jump off a wall into the Merrimack, I'll try to lean back and to the right!!!! The Typesetter

Renee (with accent): Hi -Paula

Kevin Bacon: Highway games one Route 495 North on the way to Cow Hampshire...Reading the same word 5 times and still not knowing what it was...magic eyes...electric blue...I'm too busy to have a crisis now!...Maybe I'll rearrange the room again!... screwdrivers and Cheetos with the Lost Boys...Remembering everything! Thanx!!!! -Beaner

Lady in Waiting: Are you still messing with notnAP? If you aren't, I sure would like to see you soon! You already said that once he was out, I was in, so how 'bout it? Bad

Terri and Patti: What ever happened to these midnight aerobics sessions? The frazzled roommate

Kevin, Paul and Donna: So, who else is going in the dunking booth? Sandi

NoMuTT: You never show up 'fore the hour of witchin' And when you do come, all I hear is your bitchin'. You get slammed often, My Sweet. But if you can't stand the heat, get the hell out of the kitchen!!! Love, from someone who almost cares

Above: Listen you wench, get back to your bench, for if you do not, things will get hot. I must be away, at least for today. But I will be back, to give you a whack! NoMuTT

Felix, Feenie, Pnary, Squish, Keeter, Madison, and Webb, Your Plisters! You are almost there. Congratulations on a successful weekend! Webb, we are sorry that the Monstas scared ya. Tau love, Alpha Sigma Tau Sister Yucca!!

NoMuTT: I truly am sorry that I squirted you with the squirt gun the other night. I know, I was acting childish and stupid (and a little intoxicated). Just please don't be upset with the 15th Floor Junior, it isn't her fault, she was just sticking up for a friend and I appreciate what she did, but I don't want to ruin your friendship with her over a stupid thing that I did. I'm sure that she would have done the same for you if the tables were turned. If you have to be mad at anyone then be mad at me because I deserve it, but I ask you not to be mad at her. She shouldn't have to stick up for me or cover my stupid mistakes, but for some reason she does. The 15th Floor Junior's Friend

The 15th Floor Friend: Apology accepted. NoMuTT

Sophy: Have a wonderful birthday. And, good luck on finals. Looking forward to seeing you in the summer. Love, An old friend, Mr. K

Chris, So what if you didn't bag the guy, at least his hands were kept occupied all nights long. I mean, we've got to get our priorities straight now don't we. Al

NoMuTT: Thanks for a nice weekend. I had a good time, you don't live up to your "rep", yet. At least not to me. Next time we eat breakfast I think your house should be a little more organized, that's my only complaint for now. You really are a great writer, keep it up. "The Fallen English Mjr"

The FEM: You're welcome. Don't believe everything you hear. My place is much better as of late (Thank you Typesetter). I'll try to keep it up. NoMuTT

Yogi, What's up with your girls? They been dissin' lately. I heard that one of them may not be coming back next year. Is this true? What a loss? Or? Run

Yo D.C. Which one is it going to be? Have you made up your mind? Maybe you shouldn't, maybe they want to be treated like dogs since that's what they keep calling us. Run

Run: That sounds like freshman logic to me. The Typesetter

Vinyl Villain is no match for E.E. Madness. How many Safety Lecture Labs will all of you have to make up?? E.E. Maniac & Co.

Spu - This semester is almost over! Sorry I'm not so active on the VAX this semester. I'll try harder next. Pam. P.S. Roller skating party soon after school ends. Infos will be in the mail. Interested?

Oh my God Liz or somebody - Why didn't you get her out of my bed?! Now my reputation is ruined. I can't bear to face the world now. I'm so embarrassed. I guess I'm lucky, tho that nothing happened. Mike

Colleen: The Mike Tyson wanna-be. Please try not to get in any fights Thursday at our party. I know that there's "No man in the world that can beat me, I will kill any man." and please try not to smash anyone's glasses. Jennifer

Green Eyes - I wish you wouldn't blow so much in my room. Now I'm gonna have to mop the floor. --15th Floor Junior

The Catcher -- The waiting room (and penny arcade) is open whenever I am here and feeling like receiving visitors. No appointment necessary. Closed weekends. --15th Floor Junior Schnook-- I'm happy to see that you kept your big mouth shut. But just one question; how could you still have fun? --15th Floor Junior

Mrs. Smith knew she woke up late Tuesday when she heard the garbage truck at her neighbor's house. She quickly jumped up, threw on a robe, and, with her hair in curlers and cold cream on her face, ran down the driveway. "Yoo-hoo! Mr. Garbage Collector! Am I too late for the garbage?" She called. "No lady," he answered. "Jump right in!"

Happy Birthday to the following people: 1) Oliver Cromwell, April 25, 1599; 2) John J. Audubon, April 26, 1785; 3) Ulysees S. Grant, April 27, 1822; 4) James Monroe, April 28, 1758; 5) Sir Thomas Beecham, April 29, 1879

Question: Is there some causal relationship between bad knees and big egos? I'm just curious

The Typesetter-- I wasn't aware that they had the technology to transplant those yet. I'm happy to hear that the patient is on the road to recovery. But I'm confused; if the patient is recovering, then of what use is the bed?

Above: Immediately after running, the patient is so exhausted that we must place the patient on a bed. It's sort of like a marine battery; you can deplete it to near death and then recharge it to full health. It's a complicated process..... The Typesetter

Yaj: I really feel the need to apologize. I'm sorry. Thursday night blues. P.S. You're right, you really do leave your mark. In a Big way (Ha! Ha!)

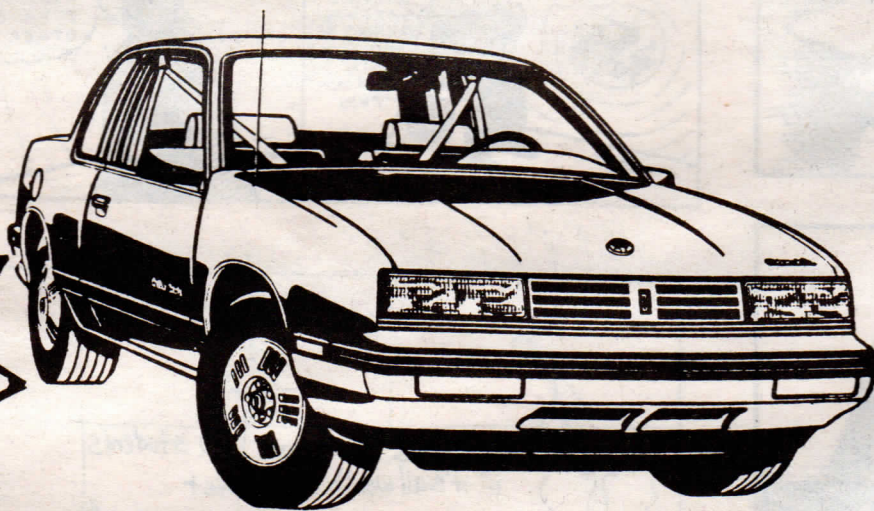

To the guy who borrowed a straw from me a couple of weeks ago: Where are my wine coolers?!? You've had plenty of time. Signed, the girl in the 15th floor lobby

To John: Happy Birthday!!! Love, Brenda

To John O'Meara: Happy Anniversary! Here's to many more! I love you!!! Love, Brenda

Heather (Spuds): Do you remember last Thursday night? You had your beer goggles on, didn't you? Oh yeah, Hand said he found your funnel under the Molloy's sign. The girls

Geri: Next time we are in Boston, please do not break into any more BMW's to steal Blaupunkt stereos, and also do not ever try to sneak into Molloy's again

To the Molloy's Terminating Force: We would like to know, friends are you always in the middle of all the fights??? Don't drink too much Spring Carnival Weekend

GT: Were you starting or what Did anyone see those ULowell guys in Boston selling glow bracelets? I think their names are Kevin and Mike. How much money did you guys make?

Hi Jen? This is sil. McFly

To my Baby (and not the one I am supposedly Having): I guess you could say the last two weeks have been kind of cold. We will just have to tell our roommates to close the windows. Right?!?! Love next week should be warmer!!!! (I hope)

To the girls of 1315: This is your roommate. I just wanted to say the year is winding down and it is almost final time. Our friendships have grown to be something very special to me. And when you leave for the summer not to return, just remember to keep in touch. Love, a friends always, Sonya

To PAW: Thanks for being there for me to talk to. To know someone cares is a good feeling. Your close friend always, Print

Spew: How is it that your pillow has such sex appeal. From P.F.O.A.

Get out! Get out! and lock the door!!

Has anyone ever: Scooped a roommate's cousin, have the Domino's Piza man come while you were scooping, have to take off your roommate's sox, and try to figure out exactly what happened the night before???

Sue: Does scooping my cousin qualify you as now being part of my family?

Capt. Morgans Spicy Rum, Schnapps, the mystery of the dry toothbrush, what happened to the shirt? Who is he, how did I end up in the top bunk, and finally: Who was the strange guy in my bed when I came home??!

Sue: Was Chris the first cousin you scooped, or was Jason someone's cousin too?? Remember - Show those pictures to anyone and be prepared to die!!

Old man: Surprise - another personal. Last weeks must have been quite a shock. Wish I was there to see your face when you read it! Just wanted to say congratulations!! I know your promotion was well deserved and I'm sure there's more to come. By the way, I wasn't trying to ignore you the other night, I'm just kind of confused.

Paula: Is it only when your drunk that you get confused as to who you're supposed to scoop? Maybe you shouldn't be so eager to open Malloy's on Thurs. nights - it could be raining cockroaches! Love, the one who should drive home and the one who has beaten you drinking - twice!

Grim Reader: Where oh where has the Grim Reader gone? Oh where oh where can he be? I know who the Grim Reader is, what a shame he doesn't know me?? -Star

Grim's Eyewitness Account of the week - See Dr. Fate run. See Dr. Doom run. Do my eyes deceive me? Are they naked? Where are they going? See the asparagus field. Standing in the field, wearing nothing but a smile (and goalie pads?) is the Punster. Look, look. Here comes NoMuTT, carrying a large tube of KY. Perhaps this is another demonstration event for the Olympics. I believe I must be going. -The Grim Reader

The Grim Reader: Nice to see that they let you out. Next time, I'd advise you not to switch hands so abruptly. NoMuTT

Peter: Happy early birthday! Love, the angel with the burning Halo

Precious Baby: This is impromptu, when I say that I love you. Please tell if you were red, when you read what I said. Love, Lynn Lipshits, xerox, and kyros; sounds like the plastics engineers have real winners to me. E.E. Maniac

Grim Reader: How much is that Grim Reader in the window, the one that is chasing his tail. If he choses to defy me, oh, how he'll moan and he'll wail. --The Equalizer

Dear Rose: This is a birthday wish. That comes with a kiss. You are such an awesome dish, who deserve eternal bliss. Love, Crusher

Maty (Monty): Happy Birthday to the cutest EE I know! Here's to graduating, shorts and barefeet weather. Love, Danielle Sister Obdewla X - We have no idea as to what you're talking about. But, you're absolutely right about playing Dungeons and Dragons and delusions of power. We suggest you stop playing. -Devestation, Inc.

To all personals users: Thanks for getting so many personals in by Saturday. I look forward to a repeat performance. The Typesetter

Typesetter - I fear that I will not be able to exterminate you until next fall and I pity those who will not be around to witness it. However, the time approaches that the present power structure of the personals page falls victim to my fearsome dark might. You yet have a chance to escape. Bow down before me and relinquish your position! The Darkness begins to descend! --The Grim Reader

The Grim Reader: Ah, you poor foolish Freshman. You have since the beginning of the semester put off "exterminating" The Typesetter under the pretense that I am not worth your time. Are you not capable of performing this task? I believe the saying goes "All talk, no action". The Typesetter

Punster: What is this? Do you have a yearning passion for PUNishment? -m. grappler

Sister Obdewla X - Were you named after an Iranian camel testicle infection? Or vice-versa? -m. grappler

Typesetter and Punster - I meant to ask this a while ago. Just what the hell is a "drummette"? -The Hammer

The Hammer: Drummettes are, of course, those little blue creatures in the shape of a drum who worship any beating sound, such as when you are....well, never mind. The Typesetter

Punster: Once there was a guy who was so poor, he couldn't even pay attention. Once there was a punster who had such diarrhea of the pen, they called him the runster. You know, if they crossed me (The Hammer) with you, they'd get a hamster. -The Hammer

The Hammer: The Typesetter's favorite sport: Hamster Bowling. The Typesetter

Dr. Fate: Seems like ages since you've given me the opportunity to wallop you repeatedly. It would make the average reader believe that you're admitting defeat. Guess you can join the countless others who have bowed in fear from the forces of the Dark Side. -The Hammer

Since Dr. Doom has proven incompetent of my challenge, I do hope he has the grace to apologize to the throngs of readers that he was but a figment of his own imagination... Or should I say of a writer's (for Marvel Comics)? Also, he should apologize for his forgery of the Origin of the Typesetter. First, the Typesetter was "created" only a few months ago. Second, he could still avoid a legal battle with Marvel Comics. As for my challenge, any takers? -The Necromancer

The Necromancer: It is rather difficult (and not to mention wasteful) to try and to fight someone who only appears very occasionally. And for your information, I would check the 8 May 1986 issue of The Connector on page 20. You will find The Typesetter in column five. You don't have a paper almost two years old? Come on up to The Connector and look in our archives. The Typesetter

Quote of the week. "Hey, what's up? Just readin' the door." "...A well known drunk with the initials "J.A."

Laurie & Kim in 1722: Kim glad to hear that you enjoyed yourself too, we knew that Laurie did! (You can always tell by the shoes!) When's the next one? -Amy & Dave Catcher: If I embarrass you in the cafe why do you sit with us? Nobody ties you down (in the cafe, anyway). And sure I do some stupid things when I'm drunk, but nothing worse than what you do sober. I'm sure you don't want me to give a detailed list. Be nice or be sorry. -5 Floors straight up.

Eames Girls: Heard that you got lucky and got a male RD for next year. Wonder what that will be like. In fact some of you may enjoy it... Bad Faith: I wasn't kidding when I told you that I wanted it all. The thing is are you willing to give it all to me. Bad

Neumie: Good, bad or trashy? I can't figure it out. Q-P

Skeme: I still don't believe it!! First you shattered my bopper!! Now you've broke my bat!! I sure hope you feel twice as good, now that you returned to my room and continued to destroy my property. If you owed me before, you owe me big time now!!! --15th Floor Junior Guinevere: What threatens us today is fear. Our dangers are the forces in the world today which are trying to use man's fear to rob him of his individuality, his soul, trying to reduce him to an unthinking mass by fear and bribery. Afraid of, or incapable of, believing in man's capacity for courage and endurance and sacrifice. Guin - is this for you or me or both? Calliope

Beth & Di, Cheer up or else! Luv me

Deb, only a few more weeks left to party! Have a great spring carnival and Don't do anything I wouldn't do! Luv, Martha

Skeme --Admit it...you just loved those 8 on 1 odds

To D (the asshole on Bogus 2): If you've got the time I've got the Beer. That's if you still remember (or want to) where I live. Don't be such a stranger to your new friend. I promise I won't be such an asshole this time. From the one who doesn't necessarily think that you are an asshole.

Spanky: Take things slowly, and it will all come together. You know where I am and you can always get in touch with me. The Typesetter 15th Floor Junior: Just who is that Freshman geek? Is it anyone that I would know? Please tell me! I promise that I won't tell anyone (fooled!) only kidding! I won't tell anyone, if you'd only tell me! Schnook Skeme -we were going to mail you some developing lotion, but then we decided to break it to gently. Number 231 is going gray!!!! --Green Eyes, Schnook, and the 15th Floor Junior.

Do you miss me? Please save me. I wanna come home!

Above: Who the hell are you???? The Typesetter

Colin: You asked for it, you got it! Only, it's not a Toyota, it's your very own personal. I could have sworn that I had you when I said free beer. But that's okay, I'm not too hurt (emotionally scared for life, but not hurt). --15th Floor Junior Basic Piano skills taught during summer months! Call Joanne after 5 (Mondays through Thursdays) at 1-373-6341 or leave name and phone number in box 1345.

15th Floor Junior: I hear that the freshman geek who's following you around is an English major. Should I expect a rendition of "Romeo and Juliet" to be playing soon? Will I be invited to the first performance? Just tell me - when will it be my turn, huh? Lisa

To the girl i shot - yes, i did put some funny stuff in the Jolly Rancher. you were just acting too silly to notice. The Crittur Guy

Johnny-O: Dis is da onlee ransom notic youze gunna get. If'n youze evers wants tosees th' animal agen, youze had betta leev 4 of Bruce Willis' favrit beary wine culers, in a plane brown rapper, with the 2 dolls on deutee to-nite (erlee) an' th' animal will fined itz wa hom

Mike - Congrats on the new car. When's she going to be on the road? -Paula

Hey, hey Mike, glad it's you and not me this time. Get her for what little she's worth. Brian

Mike - If it will help any, don't look at her face or what she wears. Brian Calliope: "We cannot tell the precise moment when friendship is formed. As in filling a vessel drop by drop, there is at last a drop which makes it run over; so in a series of kindnesses there is at last one which makes the heart run over. Guinevere

Maria and Millie: You two are the finest women in all of Lowell and I am madly in love with you Maria and would give anything to have a chance to tell you how I feel any time that you step onto the dance floor. From a Secreto Admirador- I'll give you a hint, I like to do da butt and I love your smile

My Dearest S-Person: I just must tell you that I am seriously in love with you, but I know where my place lies in your heart also so I will let me. "From a cute person who has been through it all, but keeps coming back for more..."

My passion is red, an awesome and blazing inferno that threatens to burn when raging in solo. You are the coals that hear and maintain the flame, endlessly triggering my love and the shame. I only show my emotions, I'd share them with you endlessly and ever after.....Jefi

To the wild and crazy "Southie" woman: Just 4 words for you babe - "Cheese on...Cheese off" (with spiral motion)

Hey! Where did everybody go? First Huey Lewis, then H. brownies, then...all with a 5th degree burn...can a spring carnival get any better?

Bagel: I don't remember if I told you but I had a really great time over the weekend. The boat ride was the best. Too bad the weather wasn't better. Maybe next time?? Thanks again. KI

From Steak-n-Tea nights to keg parties on the veranda...we've come a long way, baby!!!

To the best looking Pi Lam Male: As you once told me (though I already knew). Hope the air has cleared...you know how I feel! p.s. Still waiting for that infamous omelette...

ADHM (with red sweater): What's the matter? Did you need a note from your Mommy to get into the Derby last Wed.? Next time we'll vouch for you (maybe).

Hey Delta: You had better call me for your graduation party weekend... I heard those "golf course" boys have a special touch! could it be those 200 dent balls?? p.s. (Keep your ahnd out of my door!) Hooles Delth: This spring carnival I'm not gonna forget anything! Well, one of us has to keep her wits (and morals) about her and since it's you or me...well? we'll definitely have to go to the bounty next week!

Half-naked Woman: You I refuse, but if by chance you happen to see L.W. around... notnAP

Lady in Waiting: Sorry that after all that happened you're still "In Waiting" but then again, I have to tell you that I have never met anyone as understanding as you. Let's try again someday, maybe. notnAP

15th Floor Junior: Maybe I intentionally am forfeiting my chance.... notnAP

Linda: I have to apologize for a lot of things, and the best way for me would be to dazzle you as only I can - on the dance floor- I really care for you a lot... Signed your so-so dance partner

Little Brown Girl: I can no longer beat around the bush (hint hint) I want your body and don't say not because I know you don't mean it women never do! And you don't have to worry about my respecting you in the morning cuz I'll probably be gone by the time you get up! Little Italy

Sorry B.D., but I don't wear myself thin for no one...not even the "Wild One" P.S. (How's your mother doing?)

Sue L.: Boy! How your skirt ripped that night - I'll never know! Has Garfield gotten over that traumatic evening? Maybe you should carry some superglue - then Dot and I can test for prints! Hooles

Heather: Pre-H. Cocktails at 7pm? Maybe make it sooner! We can't afford to lose valuable time... Hey? Isn't that fame playing? Hooles

NoMuTT - Why are you so afraid of a little squirt?? -15th Floor Junior

15th Floor Junior: Just think of all the problems a little squirt can cause. NoMuTT

To the new sisters of AO: Congratulations of becoming part of the best sorority on campus, Alpha Omega. Love, Fitz, Ella, Gabriella and the other sisters

The AO semi was again a great success. Thanks to all the sisters, alumni, and our Sig-O Boyfriends

Patty C.: Happy Birthday! Have a good one. We can't wait to celebrate!! We love ya, Mary & Meredith

Gabriella, Congratulations on becoming the new president of AO. I know you'll do a great job. With all of us working together we make AO the best sorority ever. Love Fitz

Lady in Waiting: Patience is a virtue that we all must have or maybe it's another one??? Any way, thanks for your call. It definitely made my day. One thing though, you'll have to help me tow the line. Hopefully you understood this. Love and lollipops, The Fairy God-mother

Mark Hawaii: Thanks for a "normal" night (morning?) at Molloy's! How was the trip how from Plaistow? Thank you again-sincerely, Sue (Don't forget about our "exchange" at Myrtle!!)

Spew: your pillow is a big bastage. From P.F.O.A.

P.F.O.A.: Duh gov! My pillow is supreme. So hands off! From Spew

Kerry: Do you always hide your alcohol in an alley? Next time you want to go to The Bench, find us a ride. How did we get home again? And please don't hide the phone on me, those late night calls are obviously essential to my well-being! But then again, you wouldn't really know because you were busy writing letters to someone on 14, or do you remember??!! Love - The half that doesn't scoop drunk, only straight

Karen: Oh my head. "I don't scoop" Doubts. Yet, when I've woken up in the middle of the night you weren't here??? Drunken states bring out many emotions. Where's the phone? Love the other half

Boogie: What can I say? You were there for me as only you could be and I am eternally grateful. I want to make it up you, but I know that my time is past. I am always thinking of you in some way. Love Boo

Geri: How many times did you have to make a run for the bathroom Saturday night? And the night before that, why were you powdering Timmy?? I guess it was just a little kinky for most people to quite understand. -Guess Who

Kellie- Reflections on a saturday night; the dry toothbrush, the shower stall, the endless Cap't Morgans, that kid with the suspenders, the top bunk that you barely made, that conversation you didn't comprehend, leaving at 7:30 in the morning, listening to our roommie's constant trips to the bathroom, and finally those embarrassing pictures that I can't wait to develop. -Your Roommie

Geri, Did you worship the porcelain god before or after you pinched all those guy's bums? Did you enjoy it? Don't worry, only half the campus heard you throwing up. -amused roommies P.S. Quote of the week, "Get out! Get out! And lock the door!"

Hostile Bitch- Let's get another pizza and complimentary salad on Thursday (my treat if you do my hair). Wild Bill Rules!!! -Peppermint Patty

Luap, Thanx!! Amuse me savagely. LUF. -Peppermint Patty

Wally- Sta-hard cream might help your "bentness." But hey, I'm no expert, ask Dr. Ruth. -Peppermint Patty Skeme - I thought you came to abuse me!! The only abusing (or using) I saw you doing was with a certain redhead... Schnook

To Jim Brown (I feel good!!!): So, you think you know who I am, do you? You're not even close. But I do know you. Beware! I'm watching you! --The Punster. Leitch - Blech!!!!!!

To RAY Welliver: I seemed to overhear something about potatoes and jello to a certain girl at the dinner table the other evening. I never knew!! Schnook

The Typesetter: I guess I was just waiting until Thursday night to get to know you better before I attacked your morals again. Where were you? Oh well, if you couldn't make it then you just couldn't make it. Lisa

Lisa: That's the way the cookie crumbles (okay, give me a break, it's 1:45am!!!) The Typesetter

Fairy Godmother: we haven't written to each other in a long time. What's up? I wish I had 35 cents (ha ha) for every time I say I'm going to do one thing and then don't go through with it. I would have "mucho dinero" I wish your timmys look alike was under different circumstances, oh well. Thanks for being my friend and for understanding me just the way I am. Remember I said understand not agree with. I can be off the wall at times, why you may ask.. so many "things to do" so little time. "The Lady in Waiting"

Joan: Have you ever considered going out for the football team? Rumour had it that you enjoyed tackling guys at the Bench, or do you remember? And no more late night visits, although you did get the 17 right. You might not remember but we're going to have an awesome time Thursday night!

NoMIND: It's been a while since you've made any sense. No doubt you've been using you empty head for other things. Like crushing beer cans. Full ones. -The Anthony Bros.

The Anchovy Bruthas: Well, that reply certainly sent the lame meter right off of the scale. Why is it that you never seem to reply to what I say, but rather just avoid it? I tend to assume that you can't keep up. Then again, who can? NoMuTT

Yo MC TYE, don't let these uncountables put you down. Stand up what you believe in. Don't fold under these less than intimidating walls. Voice your opinion. Bad

Denise: Now who is it. Leave one and attack his roommate? Tisk, Tisk. Are we going back in time, rich constipation. Wake up and get a clue on who to scoop. Love me

Janice: Are you that drunk that you always leave your friends behind, or is it that you want to be aloud to scoop? And do you always meet your scoops by rubbing asses at The Bench? From-the sober ones

Study Buddie in 215: Thanks for wanting to help with Soc. I still can't believe how clean your room is, the cleanest I've seen in a long time. You really have to start getting involved in more activities. I'm younger than you and know more about the school than you do. The football team might not be great but we do have one. Don't be a stranger come and check things out you might enjoy working for our little group, we have a lot of fun. "The Lady in Waiting"

Shawn K, Glen C, and Sharon F of Box 1488: They who harbor NoMuTT shall join in his eternal suffering. -Devestation, Inc.

NoMuTT- The pizza you "gave" me last Thursday doesn't count. You still owe me

Ha: Are you instigating rumors or trying to die an early eath?! I can be helpful in both cases. As for the question, I have so many that I wouldn't know where to begin. Hopefully I can get Cybil to spill her guts, she's usually the more aggressive of us 2. But that could lead to a very messy weekend. So be prepared. (i.e. comfy shoes tissues, and a little white jacket) Regardless, it should be eventful! Q-P

EEK Red Fear More, isn't alive...Ugh!!

Cheryl: A sexy young lady flew by me the other day in a gray mustang... was that you??...Ugh!!!!

No Relationship Required: Looking for a wonderful man? Someone who is sensitive, caring, knowledgeable. Fun to be with and wants a relationship at the same time. Well, look no more because there isn't one that has all those qualities and wants to be somewhat serious. The proof is in the pudding that we keep wiping off our faces each time we find someone that is half-way decent in this place. I know it hurts to read this, but it hurts more to be writing it. Don't worry, there's always next semester! At least this semester we got dates. If there is a man out there someday we will find him or he will find us. "The Hopeful One"

All NoMuTT Wanna-Be's: Well, you've all had your chance to take shots at me without my replying instantly, as is my want. As usual, I have escaped unscathed. Were you all expecting any less than this? I think not. My most worthy opponents, Dev. Inc. weren't even involved. That doesn't say too much for all others. One more issue left. NoMuTT

Laura: Can you believe it? Only 7 more days of classes!!!!!! Then we be in "The real world" (does it exist?). Dave
